Committee within inches of vote on beds location

by Russ Duhaime

Seven hours of discussion last Tuesday fell just short of settling the most divisive issue to hit this county in more than a decade.

The local health care planning and development committee came within inches of an informal vote on the preferred location for 30 new long term care beds for the county. Then they backed away.

Tuesday's workshop at the Bonnie View Inn was designed to achieve a consensus on the future direction of acute and long term health care. And while the participants reached agreements on most issues raised in the recently-completed consultants' report, they skirted the most pressing matter by postponing their vote until April 20.

Participants in the workshop included committee members, ministry representatives and area health care professionals. Through this workshop they reached a consensus on the relocation of the Minden Hospital and on the upgrading of Hyland Crest and the Haliburton Hospital.

They also agreed this county needs 30 new long term care beds. However, they could not agree on where they should be located.

At the close of Tuesday's gathering, workshop leader David Coulson asked the 40 participants if they were willing to put the matter to a non-binding vote. To this, the response was silence.

Doctor Norm Bottum was the first to speak. He said there first to be more clarification from the ministry regarding the funding for construction and

"How are we going to walk away and leave this? The government will look at that and say 'you people in Haliburton haven't got the guts to say what you want.'"

Barb Dawson

at Tuesday's workshop

continuing operation of the proposed facilities. "There are too many intangibles to make a decision," he said.

Postponing the decision did not go over well with Haliburton's representative on the hospital board. "How are we going to walk away and leave this," asked Barb Dawson. "The government will look at that and say 'you people in Haliburton haven't got the guts to say what you want.'"

Dawson, who is also a committee member, expressed her frustration at the years of delay this project has already endured. While residents of this county have been debating the issues, other communities have been building, she said.

"I think we have to take a leap of faith and go with it. We have to start somewhere and do something. Let's do what's possible today."

Although the consultants' report provided a variety of options for future enhancement of the county's institutional health care system, the only funding currently available is for additional long term care facilities.

While the committee agreed with proposals to upgrade Hyland Crest and the two hospitals, there is no money available to do this work.

All told, the current funding available for an addition to the Haliburton

The sweet taste of spring

Maple popsicles are among the tantalizing treats to tempt guests at the Wintergreen barn near Gelert last weekend. The sap was running fast as winter gave way to spring for a few brief days. Dozens of families took the opportunity to enjoy the warm weather with a tour of the maple syrup operations throughout the county.

David Coulson leads participants through the pros and cons of the various options that have been proposed to better the county's health care system during Tuesday's workshop at the Bonnie View Inn.

Both options underfunded

Hospital amounts to about $3.2-million, which isn't enough to build a 30-bed addition at the Haliburton Hospital.

The capital cost of creating a 30 bed long term care wing in Haliburton is estimated to be almost $3.9-million. In addition, the laundry and kitchen facilities would need upgrading in order to cope with the added load. An upgrade of the existing hospital would expand the costs to almost $4.6-million.

Thirty new beds could be added to Hyland crest for about $3-million. However, an earlier commitment by the committee leaves only $1.15-million for potential use in Minden.

The explanation behind the difference in capital funding available to the individual projects is mind boggling. Chiefly, it stems from a decision the committee made last August in the hope of hastening the construction start in Haliburton.

Capital funding for new long term care beds in the county is available from three sources. The province has promised to provide $2.3-million towards the construction of up to 30 new beds. Haliburton County Council has promised to kick in $266,000, and another $600,000 has been raised through a local fund raising drive.

Last August the committee decided to bypass the study process and commit half the provincial funds to an addition in Haliburton.

County Council's funding applies only to new beds in Haliburton. Reeve Keith Tallman said Tuesday that it would be difficult to convince council to apply this money to an addition in Minden.

The $600,000 raised from the community are held in a trust fund and are earmarked for use in Haliburton. It has been suggested that this money could be freed up for use in Minden. However, Committee Chairman Jack Brezina said such a move would contradict the spirit of the donations.

A tough choice at any cost

The Haliburton County Planning and Development Committee has a hard decision to make when it meets again on April 20.

The committee must choose which of the two communities is the most appropriate location for new long term care beds. The committee may also choose to investigate other options and compromises, such as putting 15 beds in each community.

Here's a look at the costs and funding of the two 30-bed options:

Spirited quartet ends season

by Susan Wilson

The Haliburton Highlands Concert Series 1992/93 season ended on March 28th with a high-spirited performance by the chamber ensemble Fourwest. Soprano Wendy Humphreys, flutist Carol Ann Savage, cellist Margaret Gay, and pianist William O'Meara presented an eclectic selection of works from Baroque Germany to contemporary Canada. They varied their forces in duet, trio, and quartet configurations, and presented everything with flair and musicianship.

Both halves of the concert began with a group of Scottish songs arranged by no less a composer than Beethoven. This innovative bit of programming requires a brief digression.

Beethoven was invited to contemplate setting Scottish songs by one George Thomson, who in 1785 had been appointed "Secretary to the Board of Trustees for the Arts and Manufactures in Scotland". According to Alexander Thayer, Beethoven's premier biographer, Thomson was an energetic promoter of all good music and an earnest reviver of ancient Scottish melody. He first approached Beethoven in 1803 with an invitation to write, for a fee, variations on Scottish tunes in the form of piano sonatas.

This initiative by Thomson stimulated an interest on the composer's part in national airs — what we now call folksongs — from many countries. Over the years, Beethoven arranged 155 songs for voice and trio (violin, cello, and piano): 57 from Ireland, 37 from Scotland, 26 from Wales, and 35 from sundry countries including Germany, Poland, Russia, and Spain.

It is to Fourwest's credit that, through the diligent research of flutist Carol Ann Savage, who took the violin part in this performance, they are bringing these excellent, light-hearted, but little-known arrangements to greater notice. As one would expect with a composer of Beethoven's stature, the accompaniments are on a high level. The instrumental parts are intricate and full of contrapuntal activity, but they never overwhelm the charm and warmth of the original songs.

And as a singer full of charm and warmth, Wendy Humphreys was just the person to bring them to life. She is also possessed of a full, rich, clear, agile voice and abundant personality. And she enunciates her words energetically. What more could one ask for! The three instrumentalists backed her most ably and, altogether, the ensemble seemed to touch the heartstrings of several members of the audience with these delightful songs.

Bach's Sonata in E major brought together flutist, cellist, and pianist, who all demonstrated agility in the fast movements and sensitivity in the slow movements. Something about the balance between the instruments wasn't quite right though. It may have been an oddity of one's place in the hall, but the cello part seemed a bit obtrusive. This question of balance matters because the work is essentially a flute solo with accompaniment, rather than a trio for three instruments of equal importance.

(Perhaps this would be the place to insert another digression, this time on the subject of applause. One never wants to dampen enthusiasm and goodness knows, building walls of unnecessary etiquette around classical music won't help people just come out and enjoy it. But it has become customary for listeners to regard multi-movement works, such as this one by Bach or piano sonatas or symphonies, as a unified whole. That means waiting until the whole work — in this case, four movements long — is finished before congratulating and rewarding the performers with our applause. Since many of last Sunday night's concert-goers are regular patrons of the series, and since this comes up at least once a concert — when the performer, before moving on to the second movement, stops to acknowledge the applause interpolated after the first movement and to advise the audience that there's still a way to go yet and the audience then withholds its applause until after the work is finished — one wonders why the lesson doesn't carry through from one concert to the next.)

William O'Meara gave a rousing rendition of Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor. This work is full of both virtuosic, pianistic flourishes and emotive melodic passages.

Chopin and his contemporary Franz Liszt were, between them, responsible for inventing the image of the romantic pianist as superstar, and they knew how to compose works that would enhance that image. (Of course, in Chopin's case, dying at a tender age didn't hurt, either.)

The first half of the concert concluded with something completely different: Toccata by Torontonian Harry Freedman. He wrote the work for his wife, soprano Mary Morrison, and his friend flutist Robert Aitken. The duet treats the voice as another instrument by giving it no words, only a variety of vowel sounds. Toccata is an attractive and (in some moments) humorous work for the audience and a challenging tour de force for the musicians. Humphrey and Savage gave it a thrilling performance

CANTEL APPROVED AGENT

Reward offered for tackle boxes

Plano model tackle box could be worth $100 to Illinois firm

by Jerry Grozelle

Do you have an old plastic tackle box collecting dust in the attic, basement or garage?

It might be worth checking to see if it is one of the many Plano models that was made between 1952 and 1984. If it is, it could be worth $100.

The Plano Moulding Company of Plano, Illinois is in the process of assembling a tackle box museum. Unfortunately for the company, it didn't keep samples of its product in the early days. So, now, they are hoping to obtain mint condition samples of their tackle boxes from people who have acquired them over the past 40-odd years. To that end, Plano is having a contest to round up the best samples of its old tackle boxes.

It wasn't until 1984 that Plano started keeping samples of its product.

The best box of each model will bring its owner $100 and an additional $100 will be donated by Plano to the Sport Fishing Institute in the name of the publication where the angler read about the contest.

In addition, each angler who has a box chosen for the museum will receive a brand new two-tray Plano tackle box.

The entry requirements are as follows:

1. No metal boxes (Plano has made only plastic boxes since the beginning).
2. Take two colour photo prints, one showing the tackle box open and one closed.
3. Include a letter with the following information: the angler's name (printed legibly), mailing address (street, not post office box), home and work telephone numbers, the name of the publication where the angler read about the contest, and the approximate date when the angler got the tackle box.

4. Mail the photos and accompanying letter to:

Plano Tackle Box Search, 365 East North Street, Leland, Illinois, U.S.A., 60531-0206.

The deadline for entries is August 1, 1993.

"Plano has been making plastic fishing tackle boxes since 1952 and each year we have introduced new and innovative models in the marketplace," said Peter Henning, chief executive officer of Plano. "We are very proud of our history and we hope our angling friends will help us in our search for some of the older models."

The assembled collection will be displayed at the company headquarters. Each box will have a brass plate stating who the owner was and where it came from.

So, if you have an old tackle box that you think might be a Plano, dust it off and look for the Plano name.

If it is, get out your camera. It just might be worth considerably more than its original selling price.

"Our staff is mainly family, so we all live locally and work together as a family. People in our community seem to appreciate that."

A candid talk about family and funeral service with the Monk Family.

"At Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, we like to think of ourselves as a family 'team' with each person on the team diligently trying to give his or her best at all times.

"Part of being a family team is being able to understand the different needs of our families—from a family perspective. Families have different faiths, lifestyles, and financial capabilities. And each family member experiences the loss of a loved one in different ways. We always tailor our services to meet individual family preferences. And we always provide personal attention to each individual family member as it is needed. We do not have one standard of service or care that everybody gets.

"We are fortunate to be in a small town where we frequently see the people we serve. Just the words 'Thank you' or 'You have certainly helped' give us a great sense of satisfaction. The appreciation we get from others encourages us to continue giving our best. From our family to yours."

Wind, fire and water

The home of Doug and Sue Newell in Eagle Lake was all but destroyed Wednesday when a fire ripped through the structure. The blazed occurred when the family was away from the home and is believed to have resulted when a television tower toppled, possibly as a result of high winds, and came in contact with nearby hydro lines. The subsequent electrical discharge is believed to have resulted in the home catching fire. Haliburton firefighters responded quickly to the alarm, and were able to save a portion of the rear of the structure, however water and smoke damage was extensive.

Michael Burke appointed vice principal of area high school

The changing of the guard continues.

Haliburton County's school administration has been rotating recently with the latest change being Victoria Street's principal Michael Burke moving to the high school where he will become the new vice-principal.

Burke has been in the education field for more than 20 years serving most recently as the principal at Victoria Street. He also brings experience teaching grade seven and eight students which should help the high school in their destreaming process.

Burke has a B.A. from the University of Toronto and has a Master's Degree in Educational Administration.

The switch continues the process of musical chairs within the board of education which started with the announcement that Doug Devolin was retiring from being principal at J.D. Hodgson. McKay Brydon was then switched from Archie Stouffer to JDH. High school principal Peter Forgrave was switched over the Archie Stouffer and his vacated position was filled by vice-principal Gary Brohman.

Stars on Ice

The strains of Queen's arena anthem "We Will Rock You" echoed out of one of the Haliburton Figure Skating Club's dressing rooms prior to last weekend's Stars On Ice performance.

And rock them they did.

Dozens of skaters put on a great show for a packed house at the Dysart Arena. The skaters earned round after round of applause for their efforts from the littlest skaters who came out in Ninja Turtle outfits to the senior competitive skaters including the outstanding Turner sisters, Erin, Laurie and Jennifer, who performed solos and in groups.

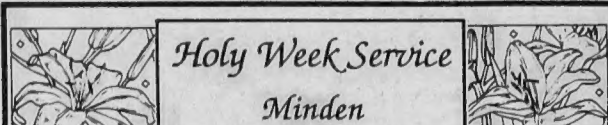

The show was the culmination of the figure skating season for many of the skaters and represented hours of work by the club's coaches, volunteers and performers.

Led by a pair of senior skaters the younger girls performed the Bird Dance for the audience.

and the audience responded enthusiastically.

After the opening group of Beethoven songs, the second half continued with three songs by Gabriel Faure, performed by Humphreys and O'Meara. This was perhaps the highlight of the evening. Faure was a composer of exquisite miniatures for voice and piano, and Humphreys chose three gems: Les rose d'Isfahan, Le papillon et la fleur, and Notre amour. She took the trouble to explain the story of each song to the audience and then performed them with great skill and beauty. O'Meara handled the accompaniments with grace and dexterity. One would look forward to an entire song recital by these two.

The final work on the program was a three-movement trio for flute, piano, and cello by Bohuslav Martinu, a Czech composer who made most of his career in France and the United States. Though this work came very near the end of his life (he died in 1959), the Trio in F suffers from none of the sins of ugliness that characterize so much 20th-century "classical" music. All three elements by which music is defined — melody, harmony, and rhythm — are present here.

Unlike the Bach, the three instruments are very much equal partners in this case. Savage, Gay, and O'Meara all handled their parts with ease. (And no, this time the audience didn't clap between the movements.)

The Haliburton Highlands Concert Series is to be commended for choosing artists of such consistently high calibre for their series.

The fact that there were no "big names" on this year's schedule only serves to confirm that there is much fine musicianship to be found in this country and that the names don't have to be instantly recognizable in order to be assured of an evening of first-class music.

Editorial Premature

The Planning and Development Committee's decision in August to commit half the provincial funding for new long term care beds to Haliburton was premature.

If there's one certainty from all the brainstorming at last Tuesday's workshop, this is it. The August decision has to be scrapped in order for the committee to move towards a decision based on sound logic.

Committee members met with health care professionals last week for a full day of examining the alternatives for improving institutional health care services in the county. The basis of the workshop was the consultants report, released a week earlier by Coulson and Associates. After seven hours of wrangling, participants were able to agree on most elements of the report. However, there was no consensus on the preferred location for new long term care beds - the only element of the report for which funding is currently available.

The August decision was made for the sake of speed. Plans for an 18-bed addition to the Haliburton Hospital were already in place and provincial funding for up to 30 beds was available. It made sense to take half the provincial funding and apply it to this project.

However, new information now casts doubt on the sensibility of this decision. It now appears that the plans for the Haliburton addition are outdated and unusable. It is also clear that an 18 bed unit is not economical to build or operate.

The most popular alternative discussed Tuesday is to build a 30-bed unit in either Haliburton or Minden. However, the August decision, which commits half the provincial funding to Haliburton effectively rules out the Minden option.

The consultants' report justifies the need for new long-term care beds in this county. It also indicates that a 30-bed unit is the most efficient size to operate. However, it does not clearly address questions surrounding the best location for these beds.

There will be a great deal of debate on the pros and cons of both locations over the next few weeks. However, the division of provincial funding should not be a consideration in this debate.

The Ministry of Health has committed $2.3-million to build new long term beds in Haliburton County. The ministry will obviously want this money to be used in the most efficient manner possible. Since the August decision was not made out of a sense of efficiency, it must now be discarded.

Another related issue that needs addressing is County Council's $266,000 commitment to the long term care addition of the Haliburton Hospital. One county councillor has said this money may not be available if the committee chooses to locate the beds in Minden. This statement is sheer nonsense.

Haliburton County Council represents the entire county, not just the village of Haliburton. The funding commitment for this project is to promote the county as a whole. It must not be used as leverage to sway the committee's decision.

Note: The following letter is addressed to the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Dear Sirs,

Please accept this letter, not as another constant complaint and bickering, but a letter from a concerned citizen.

For the last two years it should be very clear to all those running businesses and or running institutions or public organizations that a different train of thought must come into play. Money cannot be thrown, or to put it kinder, be spent on issues and policies without taking the responsibility of direct collection of this money. In other words, if you are willing to spend money you better have the intestinal fortitude to go out and talk to the source of those funds. The business needs and hurts of the past three years cannot be ignored. Surely the closed shops, the out of business signs, the welfare cases and the unemployed figures send a clear signal to your thinking. Even the much hated NDP government has enough common sense to realize the seriousness of Ontario's situation. (This is not to say they are angels by any means.) Ontario Hydro's policy of "money is no object" is now being condemned by its new management. Must I say more than to request an all-out war on spending, even an actual decline in spending?

If this is incomprehensible to you as a board or the administration of our school system then I think it is time for a change.

I have hoped that the tax payer's input over the last two years would be sufficient to gain respect. However, I still see budgets coming in over the rate of inflation and no two- or three-year plan to show where the decline starts.

You say you have told the province that you do not wish to implement Junior Kindergarten. I respectfully request the letters from both sides of this correspondence. I also request the proposed trend of spending over the next three years. Please, for the sake of our county, our province and our country, consider the affordability of the business world and its ability to hire with long-term viability and stability.

Our young people need a

New system needed for fishing rights

Editor:

I attended a public meeting with MPP Dennis Drainville at Cardiff Community Centre on March 13. I listened to Drainville's response to a question regarding native people being able to fish and hunt out of season, and I felt at the time that he was in complete agreement with the NDP government's decisions and didn't want to pursue this issue.

I think this issue should be pursued, by all politicians at all levels, by people in the tourist industry, by cottage associations, by outdoor's clubs and by nature lovers all over Ontario.

This system of giving native people the right to hunt and fish out of season (I agree they do have some inherent rights) and sell their catch is starting to cause hatred between us.

Why not give native people the right to use an area like Algonquin Park. With their right to self-government they would be able to set limits on fish and game (if they choose to), set up fish hatcheries and they could charge non-natives to hunt and fish as the Ministry of Natural Resources does now.

It is not possible to satisfy all, no matter what is done, but I think our politicians are duty bound to make decisions that bring people together and not to create hate. I do not think we can rely on Drainville to help as he does not like the NDP party (except for this decision) and I would presume that they do not like him either.

place to work and live that is affordable to them after the schooling years. Let's make this affordability a reality. I think it is fair to say for many years now costs have been downloaded through the education system. Whether we are getting better educated students from all this extra cost is debatable. I think the onus is on you to initiate a way to better educate without the constant input of dollars.

I don't think that another $1.2-million can come from this county this year. This money represents countless summer jobs, business failures and permanent job losses.

Above all it undermines the very stability that this county and its people need right now.

Please call a public meeting now. People will help you come up with solutions.

Britain is jolly well suffering, I say

You read a lot of sad stuff in the newspapers these days, but one of the saddest things I've read of late was a statistic. It came from a survey published in a London newspaper last month. Gallup pollsters asked 1,030 adult Britons a simple question: "Would you like to settle in another country if you were free to do so?"

Forty-nine per cent of the respondents said yes, if they could, they'd leave.

Forty-nine per cent! How is it possible that virtually half the native inhabitants of Great Britain would emigrate if they could?

This is the "green and pleasant land"! This is the country that coloured two-thirds of the world Imperial Pink on my old grade nine geography Rand McNally map! The Empire On Which the Sun Never Set. The Entity that Ruled the Waves. The cultural fountainhead that gave the world Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, Blake, The Beatles...

The birthplace of Burns and Yeats, Churchill and Cecil Rhodes, whose advice to young Britons was "always remember that you are an Englishman, and have consequently won first prize in the lottery of life."

How can something as magnificent as all that be - to cop a phrase from the Bard - "shrunk to this little measure?"

Well, the recession helped. Here in Canada,

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

we felt the economic downturn pretty bad, but the Brits really got clobbered. At last count, the UK had more than three million unemployed on its rolls. British businesses and factories are still sloughing off employees by the thousands as they struggle to stay afloat in a sea of red ink.

Margaret Thatcher helped to scupper the operation too. She swept to power like a metaphorical new broom, promising to set the British economy to rights with some good old-fashioned housecleaning. Survivors say that in fact she gutted the joint, replacing the old British ethic of Fair Play with a rah rah chant of "Me First!" She privatized everything in sight and left Northern Ireland, Scotland and the north of England economic wastelands. Europe? She cocked a snook at Europe, preferring to cash her chips at the Bank of America through her good pal Ronnie Reagan.

Sound familiar?

The 12 years under Margaret Thatcher were a bit like a hit from a crack pipe - heady and exciting at first, but ultimately a massive downer, leaving the victim not much more than a basket case.

It didn't help that the undeniably vibrant Margaret Thatcher was replaced by the undeniably dishrag like John Major. A nice man, perhaps even competent, not a man to inspire a confidence-stricken nation to follow him "over the top". John Major is rather, as the London Times described him, "a well-intentioned chap - the sort you would like to see marry your problem daughter."

And then there were the Royal Troubles. One thing that has long distinguished Great Britain from the rest of the world is its veneration of royalty. Regrettably, the British Royals chose this moment in history to become publicly unglued.

First there was Fergie, plastered all over the front pages of the tabloids, having her toes sucked by her Texan financial advisor. Then Chuck and Di called it quits, and the selfsame tabs got hold of their private cellular phone calls and ...

Enough.

Small wonder, really, that 49 per cent of polled Britons say they'd up stakes and move off the Sceptered Isle in a flash.

Small wonder that more than 75 per cent of those interviewed said they expected things in the UK to get worse before they got better.

We have our share of problems here in Canada, but I doubt very much that anything like 50 per cent of us would emigrate.

To paraphrase the old tea commercial: "Only in Britain, you say? Thank heaven."

Haliburton's version of the Family Feud

Grab your guns, folks, the feudin's about to begin.

The Planning and Development Committee made its way through a seven-hour workshop last Tuesday with no bloodshed. In doing so, however, it failed to confront the one thorny issue in the debate -- the issue that has the potential of upsetting the delicate balance between Haliburton and Minden and adding mileage to the no-man's land between these resentful neighbours.

The committee, with the help of a wide variety of health care professionals, came to a consensus on most issues evolving from the consultant's report on acute and long term care for the county. However, reaching an agreement on where to place new long term care beds was more than this group was up for last Tuesday.

Simply put, the committee has three alternatives (not to be confused with the "options" and "opportunities" listed by the consultants):

- it can offend everyone in Minden by putting the 30 beds in Haliburton;
- it can offend everyone in Haliburton by putting the beds in Minden,
- or it can offend the Ministry of Health and the St. Joseph's Hospital Board by putting 15 beds in each community.

What's worse is that each of the options, er . . . alternatives . . . has its own unique merits.

Alternative #1 makes everyone in Haliburton happy. Very happy.

Right off the top, it puts them one up on Minden, which is very satisfying, indeed. It more than fulfills the [hasty? absurd? cunning? (Pick one)] commitment made by this committee to build a 15 bed long term care addition to the Haliburton Hospital. Thirty beds is deemed to be an efficient operating unit. It's almost as cheap to build and run as Alternative #2.

On the down side, this option will be offensive to Minden residents, it adds long term care beds to an acute care facility, it's offensive to Minden residents and it's offensive to Minden residents.

Alternative #2 makes everyone in Minden happy. Very happy . . . It's the least expensive alternative to build and operate. It's an expansion of an existing long term care facility, and it's an efficient operating unit.

On the down side, it makes Haliburton residents unhappy.

Alternative #3 offers equal benefits to Minden and Haliburton and therefore satisfies patriots from both communities.

But . . . on the down side, it creates two inefficient units that are expensive to build

Distractions

by Russ Duhaime

and to operate. This will infuriate the St. Joseph's Hospital board, which is already absorbing operating deficits from the Minden and Haliburton Hospitals. It will also make the Ministry of Health a wee bit reluctant to grant the money to build these facilities. With a bit of finesse, ministry bureaucrats may be able to throw up enough road blocks to delay construction until after the next provincial election, at which point the new government can send the whole project back to the drawing table.

The committee dodged bullets Tuesday by deferring its decision until later this month. However, it won't get away so easily when the boomerang makes its next pass.

How will the committee vote? Your guess is as good as mine.

As part of the workshop, the participants were split into three groups and asked to devise preferred options. One group voted to put the beds in Minden, the second group voted for Haliburton and the third couldn't decide. Arguments on all sides of the issue were scantily cloaked in a counterfeit "what's best for the county" robe. The scarcely disguised partisanship of certain participants might have been amusing if not for the importance of this debate.

At the outset of Tuesday's meeting, one particularly vociferous committee member declared that he will resign if he doesn't get his way. This member's sentiments are likely shared by others on and off the committee.

The workshop wound up with words of praise for what the participants had achieved during the day. However, you can bet the back patting turned to back biting as soon as the inn was cleared.

Baseball's back

The Toronto Blue Jays are back in action this week after a poor spring training. With the Jays back can Minden Minor League baseball be far behind?

In Brief

Safety warning

There have been 35 snowmobile-related deaths so far this winter, a number that could easily rise if snowmobilers ride on melting lakes and rivers, warns the Ontario Snowmobile Safety Committee. Last winter there were only 34 deaths in total. Most snowmobile accidents occur within a 15 kilometer radius of the victim's home. Last week, several snowmobilers were observed tempting fate by riding on a slushy Head Lake in Haliburton.

"It simply isn't worth the risk and certainly not worth dying for," said Culture, Tourism and Recreation Minister Anne Swarbrick.

Fishing changes

The Ministry of Natural Resources is updating its 1993 Ontario Sport Fishing Regulations Summary to correct a number of errors and changes.

The change affecting the largest number of anglers concerns the opening day for largemouth and smallmouth bass in Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River which is June 26, not May 1 as in the summary. For Lake Nipissing the following are the open season dates: Atlantic salmon - May 22 to Oct. 10, lake trout - May 22 to Sept. 30, brook and brown trout - May 22 to Sept. 15, pike, splake, walleye and sauger - May 22 to Nov. 30.

And anglers fishing the waters of Grey, Bruce and Huron counties should check the changes to the lists of special provisions in place that allow fall fishing for rainbow and brook trout, and also year-round open seasons in stream mouths for the same species.

A printed insert listing all changes and corrections is available at your local MNR district and area office.

Free weekend?

The province should offer a fishing-license free weekend each summer says the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. The association says the weekend would give a shot in the arm for recession-ridden tourism and fishing industries. A similar weekend happens annually in Manitoba. A residential fishing license, when combined with the Outdoors Card, has jumped from $21 from $12.31 last year.

OFAH executive vice-president Rick Morgan says the high cost of fishing may tempt some occasional anglers to bypass fishing regulations.

Sid Stamp reigns once again

4-2 victory makes Stamp the champs again over Hartwick

Like the ancient, mysterious Phoenix, Sid Stamp has once again risen from the bowels of the standings to capture the Minden Men's Recreational League championship.

For the second year in a row Sid Stamp beat Hartwick in two straight games to win the finals. As they did last year the Stampers finished in last, but still managed to overcome the higher placed Hartwick (first last year, second this year) as well as the other teams in the round robin.

Last Monday night the Stampers doubled up Hartwick 4-2 as three quick goals late in the first period overcame a 1-0 deficit.

Hartwick had taken the early lead after coming out of the gates flying. After a couple of close chances, John Teljeur took a pass just inside the blueline and rifled a low wrist shot past Rob Crowe. Glenn Hall and Gary Harrison picked up the assists on the play.

Midway through the period Hartwick had a chance to go up 2-0 when Scott Hamilton took a retaliatory tripping penalty, but did not really come close to scoring. The missed opportunity seemed to change the momentum of the game as the Stampers scored three times in four minutes just after killing the penalty off.

Hamilton scored the first two, the first on a rebound during a scramble in front of Paul Humber's net while the second came when he drilled home a shot after taking a pass in the slot. Jeff Campbell assisted on both goals while the other assists went to Barry Walker and Brent Flood.

The third goal came with about one minute left. Seconds after Humber made a great save off Brian Shaw, Barry Shaw stepped in and drilled one by Humber. Hartwick made the game close early in the second when Ben Manuge cruised through the slot and beat Crowe with a good shot, but despite a number of good opportunities that was as close it would get.

Brian Shaw finished off the scoring when he snapped a long shot past Humber after Campbell had won a face-off deep in Hartwick's zone. Dave Hartwick picked up the second assist on the goal.

Things did get a little testy towards the end of the game as the close checking got to both teams. Brian Shaw took a minor for knocking down Humber, but things settled down after a lot of yelling. Give the referees credit for keeping things in control.

Thanks also go out to Brian Black for sponsoring Sid Stamp, as well as all the other sponsors and the timekeepers.

Atom Bs complete a miraculous comeback

The Atom B have made a miraculous comeback to find themselves in second place in their round-robin.

The Monarchs lost their first three games and tied the fourth as follows: against Beaverton a 2-0 loss and 1-1 tie, and against Omamee 2-1, 2-0 losses. Goals were scored by Justin Bull and Adam Bathe with assist to Ryan White and Craig Kerr.

Having just two games left and with only one point, the Monarchs looked headed for the Consolation round. However, the tables were turned and the Monarchs came out and won their last two games against Sunderland to give them five points, and a second place finish.

In the first game the Monarchs were on home ice and finished on top 3-2.

Sunderland scored first in the first period, but the Monarchs kept pressing for the tie and did so with only 37 seconds left in the period. Rich Kinsman blew one by the Sunderland netminder after Adam Bathe had set him up.

The second period was a reverse of the first with Andy Kinsman capitalizing on a nice pass from Mike Shepperd, but two minutes after that Sunderland tied it up at two.

The 2-2 tie remained until late in the third period. There were plenty of chances for both teams to score, but Shane Walker stonewalled Sunderland until the Monarchs could get untracked.

With only 3:30 left in the game, Jimmy Abbott scored the winning goal with Dennis Arbour assisting.

Two days later the Monarchs paid a return visit to Sunderland and won.

Just 45 seconds into the game Abbott had put the Monarchs ahead with help from Arbour and White. Sunderland tied it less than a minute later which finished the scoring for the period.

In the second, White put one home with an assist by Trevor Cole. Sunderland pressed for the tying goal with some aggressive play, which resulted in no goals but a lot of trips to the penalty box.

Bull scored the Monarchs third goal with an assist to Shepperd and then Andy Kinsman scored the fourth and final goal with assists by Cole and Bathe.

The Monarchs are now involved in a best-of-five series with Beaverton.

35 less Jays games on tube for Haliburton's residents

Toronto Blue Jays fans in the Highlands will be watching a lot less of their favourite team this year after CKCO was dropped by Baton Broadcasting Inc. who are responsible for setting up the Jays games.

Those people without cable or satellite dishes will lose 35 games this year which were shown on CKCO last year. The Kitchener based station would retransmit the games from CFTO (Toronto) to Haliburton, Muskoka and Parry Sound. Many cable operators do not carry CFTO so their customers will also lose out on the games.

However, since Baton bought rival stations in London and Wingham last year it now considers CKCO to be a rival and pulled the plug on the Jays games. People in the south-western Ontario will still be able to watch the games, but without a transmitter in this area cottage country misses out.

Last year Baton bought rights to 60 games per season for five years. It then sold 25 of those games to CBC which will still be seen in this area on CKVR Barrie. The remainder were offered to Baton and CTV affiliated stations. CKCO is owned by Electrohome.

Three years ago Baton applied to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission for a transmitter near Orillia to bounce CFTO's signal into cottage country. However, the application was rejected.

Pee Wee B Monarchs tie Cannington at one apiece in penalty-filled game

Last Saturday in Cannington the Minden Monarchs Pee Wee Bs played the Kings to a hard-fought 1-1 tie.

Despite 34 minutes in penalties being handed out, 18 to the Kings, the game was a fast, tightly played affair with a lot of end-to-end action.

The Kings home ice surface, being much smaller than most arenas, allowed the teams to get to the other end much quicker than usual.

The Monarchs took the only lead of the game when Jamie Henderson converted a set-up from Jason Kasepчук to put his team up by one in the second period.

That lead stood up until the third period when the Kings tied it up.

Novice Cs crown Kings

The Novice C Heat Line Minden Monarchs opened up their first playoff series two weeks ago with a 7-1 loss to Woodville.

A win was not in the cards for the boys due to an unusually late scheduled game and the long drive to Woodville. The Monarchs' lone goal was scored by Derek Barnett with assists by Kyle Danilko and Kevin Walker.

The following morning the Monarchs hit the road again, this time to Cannington, but came home with a 3-1 win over the Kings in their pockets.

Despite a lot of scoring chances and plenty of action neither team could score until the second period when Matt Mattsson scored a beauty after taking a pass from Danilko. Less than two minutes later Barnett put the Monarchs up 2-0 with Danilko and Darryle Russell assisting.

The Kings got one back and continued to press for the equalizer, but Jeremy Davis stonewalled the Kings for the rest of the game. Barnett scored the game's final goal with just 1:13 left in the game after being set-up with a nice couple of passes by Walker and Evan Kernohan.

In the second and final game, the Kings came to Minden. The Monarchs needed a win to put them in second place and they came through with a 4-2 victory. The Kings jumped out front 1-0, but Barry Dunn with assists from Kernohan and Mattsson tied it up just seconds later.

That score remained through two periods, before Barnett scored with assists by Walker and Brent Heise. However, the Kings tied it up just two minutes later.

Benji Saunders broke the tied game with two goals for the Monarchs, both being assisted by Kernohan and Mattsson.

OPPORTUNITY FOR INPUT ON PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION ISSUES

Guided by the recommendations contained in the Haliburton County Community Directional Plan, the Haliburton County Planning and Development Committee is coordinating an opportunity for interested parties (agencies/organizations/service providers/consumers) to become involved in planning/developing a more coordinated system of public transportation for Haliburton County.

The Committee is seeking input, knowledge and expertise on the existing transportation resources in the County as well as the public's assistance in identifying any possible gaps in service delivery, availability, etc.

The meeting will take place at the Royal Canadian Legion in Haliburton Village on April 19, 1993, from 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Please advise Kate Reed, Development Coordinator, Planning and Development Committee, by April 12, 1993 at 457-9188, if you would like to attend this meeting. Your participation is encouraged and valued.

Hockey winners

The Minden Monarchs seasons are almost over, and each team has reason to be proud of their accomplishments. To recognize and honour the outstanding play of the Monarchs' players this year, Dollo's IGA and Coca-Cola held a hockey equipment draw. Dave Dollo presents two of the winners with their prizes, a hockey bag to Graham Neave of the Novice Bs and a hockey stick to Chris Kerr of the Atom Bs. Matt Reid of the Atom As also won a hockey bag. Congratulations, however, go to all of the players.

On the weekend of March 21/22, the Minden Monarch OMHA Atom team journeyed to Toronto.

During the course of the weekend the players were able to attend the afternoon Blue Jay baseball game at the Skydome and the evening Leaf game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The players and coaches would like to thank the following, whose contributions made the enjoyable weekend possible:

Barry Shaw of Sid Stamp moves in from the point to take a shot at Hartwick goalie Paul Humber. The shot found its mark giving the Stampers a 3-1 first period lead.

Hartwick made it close, but lost the game 4-2 and the Minden Men's league finals two games to none for the second straight season to Sid Stamp.

Wildlife group to help farmers

Ducks Unlimited to spend $6 million to show farmers how to preserve their land

Over the next 15 years, Ducks Unlimited Canada will spend $6 million in rural areas to develop environmentally friendly farming practices.

While Haliburton is not considered a high priority area for the program in its initial year its neighbours are. Victoria, Peterborough and Simcoe counties will receive some form of assistance as will the Bruce, Wellington and Leeds/Grenville areas.

The Ontario Land Care (OLC) program will focus on six main areas: grazing management, forage management, buffers, permanent cover, on-farm demonstrations and water management. Financial and technical assistance will be offered to co-operators for managing their land that makes good agricultural sense and also provides wildlife habitat. Qualifying landowners will agree to protect wetlands on their property.

The target area is a 60 mile wide band running from the Quebec border to Brantford and from there to Georgian Bay and Severn Sound.

"On-farm extension demonstrations are an important part of Ontario Land Care. We hope these will create local interest in OLC and show farmers concrete ways that agriculture and wildlife can work together," said Ducks Unlimited provincial agrologist Galen Driver.

This is the first initiative Ducks Unlimited has done to improve wildlife habitat on agricultural uplands, although it has worked with landowners in the past to enhance wetlands. A similar project was set up in western Canada for the past three years.

Stopping it

The Haliburton Huskies mite team came from behind to beat the Ennismore Canucks 4-3 on Saturday morning. The Canucks played the whole game without a properly equipped goalie. The Huskies scored two goals in the dying minutes including the winner with just 11 seconds left to win the game. The game was part of the weekend action at the 41st annual Glen Dart Memorial Tournament held by the Huskies' organization.

Senior men take Minden curling battle of the sexes

by Aileen Blears

*And so, frail creatures of a day,
Let's have a good time while we may,
And do the very best we can
To give one to our fellow man.*

--Robert Service

The Minden Seniors Curling Club Wednesday Afternoon Ladies wound up the 1992-93 season with a 'challenge match' which was accepted by the senior men.

This was a 'don't do us any favours' 'spiel. It was almost a skunk, but Katie Parker, and her team of Molly McCarthy, Clara Warren and Gladys Marquardt, saved the day for the women by out-curling Tony Dymott, Cliff Green, Clyde Russell and Ross Codlin. One wag suggested that she probably had Divine Help ... Not.

Of course, the men were going around all puffed-up and proud. The proudest and puffed-uppiest was the first place team of skip Tom Hurta who had Frank Codlin, Jim Gahagan and Ralph Newton helping him.

Following them in the peacock-parade were the second place winners with Lloyd Boskett skipping Russ Fair, Ted Wilkes and John Lennard. George Hewitt, and his rink of Roly Scott, John Thomas and Lee Oster, accepted third place with quiet pride.

The winner of the ladies' second schedule was skip Gladys Wruth with Helen Rice, Elizabeth Wright and Giselle Russell. Second place was won by Marie Lennard, Merle Codlin, Marion Thomas and Ruby Wilkes.

Most have heard that one is hungry again an hour after eating Chinese food, but few have heard that one is hungry an hour before eating Chinese food. Such was the case when dinner, which should have been ready at five o'clock, was not ready until six. In the words of Confucius, "The grass must bend when the wind blows across it." The curlers and guests 'bent to the wind' and did not mind waiting. When the food did arrive, it was delicious, and plentiful enough for the ravenous appetites created by the delay.

Fifty great people attended this affair, and they all live by the words of Robert Service, "let's have a good time while we may."

Another good time is coming up on May 1 when the MSCC Annual Awards Dinner and Dance will be held at the Community Centre, not many tickets left so see Harold McCarthy soon for yours.

Curling winners

The mixed curling leagues held their play-offs Thursday evening with these two four-somes emerging with the second half titles. Winner of the Thursday Night mixed title was the Jim Garbutt rink, above, defeating the Bob Pollard rink. Team members include, from the left, Mark Chayer, Jim Kirk, Nancy Garbutt and Jim Garbutt. The Chris MacDonald rink claimed the Friday night mixed title. The team defeated the Laurey Roodenberg team. Included in the winning rink were Nancy Lowes, Brian Adamson, Chris MacDonald and Rick Lowes.

Before they turned off the ice making equipment last night, (Sunday) the teams took to the ice one more time to decide, once and for all, whether the rumour was indeed true that Friday night curlers are superior to their counterparts from Thursday night.

Correction

In last week's paper Ryan Lydiatt was incorrectly identified as Ryan White. Lydiatt sold the most chocolates this year for the Minden Monarchs hockey association. Lydiatt and White both play for the Atom B team.

Drainville says natives have extra rights

Native Canadians do have aboriginal hunting and fishing rights and the government must act accordingly says area MPP Dennis Drainville.

The 1989 Sparrow decision of the Supreme Court of Canada affirmed that natives do have these rights and governments, not only in Ontario, but across the country have responded to the court's decision by beginning to implement new policies. The Sparrow decision has the proviso that conservation and resource management principles are followed.

Drainville has come under a lot of criticism lately for his stance on native hunting and fishing rights, most recently at an open public forum in Cardiff in March.

Outdoors groups like the Haliburton Outdoors Club and the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters say the Williams Treaty of 1923 took away those rights in exchange for money and is still legally

Local MPP responds to his critics and defends his government's negotiations with native communities binding. The treaty has been appealed by native groups.

The following are excerpts from a release by Drainville answering some of the questions posed by outdoor groups.

The Williams Treaty is still legal so why is the NDP reopening negotiations instead of waiting for the appeal process to finish?

"Recently the Supreme Court of Canada granted the United Indian Council leave to appeal the Williams Treaty of 1923. That appeal is underway now which means that the status of the Williams Treaty will be determined by the Supreme Court of Canada. The fact that they have been allowed to appeal indicates there are questions regarding the continuing application of the Williams Treaty.

"It continues to be Ontario's hope to avoid court imposed decisions by seeking negotiated settlements instead. If we do not negotiate, we may find the courts of this land making the decisions for us with no input from us."

Diane Dawson pours maple sap onto some snow to create instant treats for the children who go up to Wintergreen to taste the sweet syrup of the Highlands.

Sap run

by Andy Holloway

After a delayed start due to the prolonged cold weather, the area's hardwood maple trees are finally releasing the sweet stuff which will end up on breakfast plates across the world covering pancakes, waffles and French toast.

Or are they?

The weather is once again up to its old tricks. A week ago the sap was running free and easy at maple syrup operations across the county, but a heat wave early in the week followed by snow and much cooler temperatures stopped the sap cold for many producers in the area.

Maple trees require a little bit of coaxing in the spring to give up their precious sap, namely cold nights and warm, sunny days says Tom Dawson who runs a maple syrup farm near Gelert with his wife Diane. There have been few of those days in Haliburton County recently, but a few nice days two weeks ago was enough to get the sap flowing. The best flows happen when the daytime temperature is higher than 4 degrees Celsius after nights of less than negative four degrees.

But if it gets warm enough where the nights are above the freezing point the sap flow begins to decrease which is why producers like long springs rather than a severe winter melting into a hot spring overnight.

The large amount of snow in the area did help to insulate the trees as well as provide a lot of moisture for the soil and the snow that fell last Thursday and Friday helped that process. The result should be sweeter sap than usual, Dawson says, adding there are other factors involved including the tree itself.

"Maple trees are a lot like people - some are sweeter than others."

There are a large number of maple syrup producers in the county, but many of them tap just enough for their own use. Anyone with a maple tree on their property can make syrup from sap as long as they have the patience and the knowledge.

However, there are several people who have turned their syrup business into a much larger operation. One such operation is Dawson's farm on County Road 1 just north of Gelert.

The couple, who are both teachers at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, have turned what was once a hobby into a second full-time job.

"People don't realize that making maple syrup is a year-round process," says Tom showing the uninitiated around his operation.

"In the winter you have to cut wood, and then there is the tapping in late winter, during the spring there is the actual tapping process and after that all of the equipment has to be cleaned. Then it starts all over."

The Dawsons have been making maple syrup on their 200 acre property since they moved there in the mid-1970s during the "large Toronto exodus back to the land" says Dawson.

At first they tapped a few trees for their own use, but they didn't market their product until around 1989 when they finished reconstructing an old barn on their property. The barn was more than a sugar shack. The barn is similar to the ones in Vermont, where Dawson says they are more advanced in their tourist operations than most places in Canada, which offer guided and informal tours, samples and on-site breakfast.

The history of the sugaring off process is a much longer one in Ontario stretching back to when the natives were the only human inhabitants of the area. They collected the sap by axing a V-shape into the trees and inserting a hollow branch for the sap to flow into birch bark buckets. The sap was then placed into a hollow log with hot rocks to make a crude form of sugar as well as to give venison a maple flavour.

When the Europeans finally settled here they learned the process and over the years have refined the process using new technology to speed up and enhance the process.

Today's large operations use vacuum pumps, wood-fired evaporators and temperature gauges to turn the sap, which contains about 3 per cent sugar, into the syrup we buy which is about 66 per cent sugar in around four hours. But, it still takes roughly 40 buckets of sap to make one bucket of maple syrup.

The Dawsons recently bought a larger evaporator which Tom was still getting used to when the sap started flowing two weeks ago. There are a lot of variables in the process, says Dawson, it isn't as easy as just draining the sap and then putting it on your plate.

Looking at the operation in and around the Dawson's barn it's easy to see that the process is long and involved. The evaporator itself looks like a steam engine with large amounts of mist billowing out the top, but instead of creating energy this machine creates syrup.

About 700 trees are tapped into a pipeline which carries sap into the barn says Dawson. From there it runs through a series of pipes and into the evaporator where after it's boiled it runs through another series of pipes and a strainer before the sap even smells like syrup.

About 70 per cent of the world's sap is produced in Canada with the majority of that being produced in Quebec, although Ontario does contribute a healthy share. Still, the most important element in the process is the one thing that can not be controlled - the weather.

Last Friday, Godfrey Tyler, a full-time farmer who runs Waverly Brook Farms near Donald, said the sap ran dry at his 700 tree operation the previous Saturday simply because, "it got too hot and then too cold."

Tyler has been making syrup for the past five years although the history of maple syrup on his property runs back to the early years of this century. This year's sap run is later than usual says Godfrey, but the season can still be a long one.

Louise Berry who is the president of the Haliburton District Maple Syrup Association and a maple syrup producer at the Iron Kettle says last week's cold snap was actually good for the sap industry.

"This is a good break, we needed it," says Berry, "There was too much sunshine before which brings the buds out. These cloudy days are much better."

Grab a sweet taste of the Highlands at these other places: Allan Gurr on Trapper's Trail, George Burley at Maple Lake, Dale McConnell at Maple Lake, the Nadeaus on highway 35, David Freeman on Haliburton Lake, Kevin Boyle on Highway 121, Dwayne Wruth in Lochlin and Brian and Jerry Bartley near Norland.

Kids of all ages enjoy sweet sap on a stick.

Congratulations

Eating their higher education

Seven students watch their work eaten by six hungry patrons

It was a delicious ending. And fortunately, this reporter was given the opportunity to share in the fruits of the students' labours.

The occasion: the final session of the Baking and Cooking retraining class sponsored by Sir Sanford Fleming College, held in conjunction with the government's employment Canada.

The location: Halimar Resort, at a carefully laid table, in front of the big picture window overlooking the dazzling frozen surface of Lake Kashagawigamog, on one of those March days which says spring is just around the corner.

The menu: Ah, the menu. Appetizer: smoked salmon, served on a bed of leafy greens. Entree: Pork tenderloin, rolled and stuffed with spinach, mushrooms and pine nuts tastefully arranged on a plate with a sliced red potato, medley of fresh vegetables and Rosemary apple sauce. Dessert: Deep baked apple slices served with lemon snow and a chocolate/raspberry coulis, followed by hazel nut cookies. The meal was enhanced with a glass of wine, a variety of bread in rolls, including rye, French, egg and cheese sticks, and capped with a steaming cup of coffee.

The seven students, working under the direction of instructor Ron Tentorey had been learning the trade for the past nine weeks. Each Thursday, the class would showcase their new skills by inviting guests to join them for lunch.

Laxton wants community input

Recreation administrator looking for fresh ideas

by Jerry Grozelle

The bright chartreuse posters in the Laxton, Digby and Longford Township Office read "WANTED Suggestions For Community Activities."

The municipality's recreation administrator Fay Brown is looking for some fresh ideas for events that will stimulate some interest in the community and maybe raise some funds as well.

"We're looking for anything and everything," Brown said. "We want to get an idea what the people want."

The traditional stand-by, weekend dances, have not been enthusiastically received lately, Brown admits.

The last dance drew just 32 people. Although the night of the dance turned out to be a stormy one, Brown speculated that at least that many people lived within walking distance of the hall where it was held.

"We're fairly limited in putting on things for free," she admits, adding that the Canada Day festivities and the annual Winter Carnival are events that are admission free.

Ideas for events that can be run without cost (or at minimal cost) or ones that would generate some funds are what she is looking for. Any reasonable suggestions would be welcome.

Brown will be accepting written suggestions until April 19 at P.O. Box 70, Norland, Ontario, K0M 2L0.

During business hours they can also be dropped off at the Laxton Township Office (the old Norland school).

Great food earns even better grades

"All the items you enjoyed today were made from scratch," their instructor commented as we relaxed over coffee. "From the breads to the cookies, the students started with the base ingredients and created the meal." The meticulous attention to detail resulted in a delicious meal gracefully presented. The reward this reporter and my fellow diners enjoyed speaks highly of the abilities the students acquired over the past nine weeks.

"Basically, the students are now ready to step into a position where they can work under an experienced chef," Tenthoray commented.

"They have an excellent grounding in proper kitchen procedures and are well on their way to developing a new career."

By the time the course had concluded, last Friday, and the students had received their certificates one of the seven had obtained full-time work, two others had positive leads, while the remaining students were still looking for a place in the kitchen.

Judging by the quality of their final product, it shouldn't be long before they all find that place.

Cottage car wars were no trip to the beach

It won't be long now until the annual influx of cottagers and tourists invade the Highlands.

Some of us may envy these pioneers of disposable income, but as I recall there are several drawbacks to having a cottage, particularly when you factor in several kids crammed into the back of a 1965 Volvo coupe for a three hour ride, yes a three hour ride.

Three hours, three kids and no where to go, a recipe for disaster or at least a spot of mayhem.

Word association games and 'I spy' quickly lose their charm when breathing in exhaust fumes due to the rather large hole in the floor board. Oxygen deprivation works in strange ways, strange ways indeed.

The first game is what we referred to as the Monkey game. One brother would say, "Hey, look at that." Another brother would look, see nothing out of the ordinary and say, "What?" At which point the first brother would say, "Monkeys always look." Followed by the witty retort, "Apes always tell," whatever that means.

Variations on this theme would go on for about an hour or so always ending when someone would place his fist about two inches away from his brother's face and say, "Look at that." Of course the unfortunate boy would swing his face around at about 60 miles an hour and ram his face into a stationary fist.

The perfect set-up with the best excuse money could buy. "Honest, mom, his face hit my hand. I never moved it he just tried to eat my fingers."

Another fine children's game would be for the eldest brother to grab the youngest's fist and hit him with it.

"Stop hitting yourself, why are you hitting yourself."

This too would be funny for awhile until the boy with no control would hit himself in the eye and cry, cry, cry. End of game.

Of course, parents are no help.

"Why are you crying? Stop crying. If you don't stop crying this instant I'll give you something to cry about." A threat that in today's world would probably be considered child abuse, but to the poor beleaguered parent would be the last step before insanity.

There was also the game of poker. Not the card game, but a game of poking until it drives your opponent nuts. Poke. Poke ... Poke.

Slow, methodical pokes to the stomach. Ticklish at first, this variation of the Chinese water torture trick would soon become maddening. Finally, the

by Andy Holloway

opponent cries out and says, "Uncle."

The game would stop for about five minutes, before resuming. Perhaps between two different people, or maybe the same pair only reversed.

Finally, Dad would lose it completely and stop the car at the side of a dark, deserted highway between nowhere and nowhere.

"Do you want to walk home?" he would shriek. "Do you? Because I have had enough of this."

Humbly we'd mumble, "No Dad."

"Well then sit back, be quiet and don't bother me until we're there. This is the last time you are ever going to the cottage."

Then everyone would sit back, the hairs on Dad's neck would return to their regular position and the vein in his forehead would stop pulsing ... for about five minutes.

Poke.

Coalition to give education board options

Editor:

The approximate board of education budget increase of over seven per cent is unacceptable to the taxpayers of this county. It is unfortunate that the board will not listen to the taxpayers when suggestions are made to cut the budget. We were accused of not coming in to discuss the budget with the administrator as we did last year.

Yes, we went over the budget last year with the administrator and he explained all the items, but in the end they only cut costs in the area of maintenance - but they did the maintenance in the fall and winter anyway.

The board, in their opinion, have good reasons for spending money on projects and goodies, but we the taxpayers cannot afford some of those luxuries such as over $1 million in computers ($885,000 plus tax) over the next five years. They are not listening to the reports that say our children are losing their ability to think, comprehend and yes, give change without looking at a calculator.

It seems the administration want to be leaders in all departments, destreaming, and get ready for junior kindergarten. These plans and expenses have not even been approved by the ministry yet. The board is on record as saying they are against junior kindergarten, but have the programs and the accommodation already in place.

The quality of education is the reason the board says it will not give up programs or cut back on staff. We believe in the quality of education as well, but only to the extent of what we afford. We cannot afford to buy new computers and software and training for over $1 million at this time.

These are hard times and the board must cut its spending to fit the budget of the taxpayer. We are not going to stand by and let the board put us in the poor house.

On April 13, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at the board's office there will be a presentation by the coalition along with a delegation to the school board attempting to persuade the board to listen to our requests and get its budget increase down to zero per cent.

We invite all taxpayers to attend this meeting if you believe the budget should be reduced.

Bill Payne
President, Haliburton County
Taxpayers' Coalition

Computers are worth it, junior kindergarten is not

Editor:

Over the years I've become pretty aware of where money is both wasted and well spent in our educational system.

To me it makes sense to forget about Junior Kindergarten and put every dollar saved into our computer program.

Our computer teachers are doing a tremendous job, but Betty Stevenson sold the Ontario Boards on a bill of goods in her "Icons" (so-called Betty's Beavers).

Students in every academic level benefit from computer literacy. Updating and modernizing our equipment is one of the best things we can do for both instructors and students.

PC users work on the modem

by John Menzies

The PC Users met at two separate homes this month. Half of the group met at Charlie Tyler's while the other half met at Eileen Hughes' home. The purpose of the evening was to give members a chance to work on modems.

The evening was a total success for a first try at communications. Although there were problems, we managed to transfer and receive a file, but spent the remainder of the time chatting via the keyboard.

At our next meeting on April 6, at 7 p.m. we will expand our horizons in modem work. Call for the location of the meeting (457-2575).

Any modem users are welcome to bring a system with them in order to get practice with the hardware and software. Since many are novice users, all should enjoy.

If you have an external modem we may have the use of for the evening, please contact me at the above phone number.

Conservation essential says MPP

Why are negotiations being held in secret with no input from those groups which would be affected by the results, ie. anglers and hunters?

"The Ontario government is the representative of the people of Ontario in these negotiations, and that includes all organizations and individuals. The negotiations are taking place on a government to government basis (Ontario to Natives). Further, in many negotiations in this area, the federal government is also a party at the table.

"In the case of the Williams Treaty, Ontario is looking at appropriate and legal ways to provide members of the First Nations with a well regulated environment in which they can continue to hunt and fish according to their tradition. That means hunting and fishing only for personal, social and ceremonial purposes or for individual and community food supply."

Reports on television have shown natives hunting and fishing out of season and taking more than what they need so they can trade or sell their catch. How can the government regulate this?

"Conservation of fish and wildlife are ensured. I wish to make this very clear. Conservation is an essential part of these agreements. Fish and wildlife populations are to be protected and preserved, as stated clearly in the Supreme Court decision. No commercialization will be allowed. Trespass on private property will not be allowed and public safety must be ensured under these agreements."

Some natives have already been allowed to fish and hunt out of season. Is this fair?

"These interim agreements will afford consistency in dealing with the Williams Treaty people in a manner similar to the other 121 First Nations in Ontario. That is to say, the treatment of the Williams Treaty peoples will be the same as other Ontario native groups as set out in the Interim Enforcement Policy of 1991."

Artisans' festival bigger than ever

The third annual Highlands Artisans' Festival will be held on Saturday and Sunday July 3 and 4 at the Minden Community Centre.

This popular show and sale will include the work of more than 100 of the area's most accomplished painters, weavers, wood workers, knitters, potters, stained glass designers, writers and many others.

This year's show will also include demonstrations by some of the artists as well as a special Community Art Display and exhibits by both the County Town Museum and the Horticultural Society.

For more information, call the Agnes Jamieson Gallery, festival hosts, at (705) 286-3763.

Suzuki attacks his detractors

Any opinionated columnist is going to encounter vigorous disagreement which often provides a measure of the gulf separating different points of view. Take these two letters.

Under the headline 'Suzuki and his followers would take us back to Stone Age', Brian Sharron's letter was printed in the Windsor Star (January 20). Let's examine some of his provocative statements: "The truth is, Suzuki and environmentalists alike have a deep hate for technology and the accomplishments of man." The real truth is, I depend on and am grateful for the technologies of television, a modem for my laptop, telephones, airplanes and cameras. All I ask is that the inevitable "costs" of humanity's "accomplishments" be addressed.

We non-aboriginal people cannot become and should not try to be aboriginals, but we have much to learn from their attitudes and values. Sharron says aboriginal harmony with nature "consisted of superstitious beliefs in nature, magic, hallucinogenic drugs, hunter/gathering, slavery and savage wars ... They were stagnant, primitive, mystic, tribal cultures." Sharron's rant reveals a lack of respect for aboriginal knowledge and culture that prevents him from learning a thing from them. Transformation of society must begin from the grassroots. To Sharron, this means "eco-fascists" will take over. He says they "are now getting away with defaming and dismantling the superior culture we live in."

Real fascism is Sharron's derogation of those with whom he disagrees and his rhetorical attempt to discredit any questions of the values of a "superior" way of life.

Other "greens" and I are accused of being "anti-technology, anti-productivity, anti-prosperity and ultimately anti-man." Nothing could be further from the truth. We speak out because we are human, love our children and care about the fate of humanity. We recognize that every bit of our productivity and prosperity comes from air, water, soil and other living organisms, which is why we should all care about what we doing to the planet.

Sharron finally reveals the ideological basis for his angry diatribe. "We have plenty of land and resources for our future generations. Thanks to modern science and technology, we will be able to solve the many problems that will surely face us in the future."

For years, eminent scientists have warned that Sharron's faith is misplaced. Scientists do not know enough to understand and reverse the catastrophic erosion of biological factors on which life depends.

Verify the change for yourself by talking to elders who have lived in an area for 60 or 70 years. Sharron lives in Windsor - what do elders there remember about the water, air and soil in that part of southern Ontario when they were young? Can science and technology really bring back the luxuriant forests that once coated this continent, or clean the water of the Great Lakes and restore the teeming life that inhabited them? Not likely.

Another letter sent from Salmon, Nova Scotia, by a "retired professor", J.A. Deven, accuses me of being an apologist for "the environmental terrorists that get their funds to live an easy life and jet around the world spreading their doom and gloom unproven theories."

Almost 2,000 environmental organizations exist in Canada. They are the heart of the environmental movement and almost all survive on sacrifice and volunteer help.

"I think these people in B.C. and Oregon and some in Nova Scotia who want to stop all logging are the most dangerous people alive."

Reflections

by David Suzuki

That's quite an assessment! I don't know any environmentalist who opposes all logging or even all logging of old-growth forests. I love carpentry and working with wood and I hope that the children and grandchildren of loggers will be able to cut trees that are every bit as big, abundant and diverse as those they are liquidating now. Future generations won't if we carry on with the same methods and attitudes.

"You are taking away the means of livelihood of ... the people who earn their living from our natural resources." This is simply wrong. Environmentalists are not wiping out small family farms, miners or Newfoundland fishers, it is global economics and ecological degradation. In B.C. the volume of wood cut over the last two decades has doubled, yet jobs have declined over a third.

These letters show that radically different perspectives preclude genuine dialogue. We have to reach some kind of common ground from which constructive discussion and debate can begin.

Volunteers make the world go around

We, in industrialized countries, like to believe that our society aspires to progress. But how do we define it? Is progress measured by the degree to which we reduced poverty, our record in social justice, the richness of our culture or the availability of medical care?

I would say "yes" to all of those and add the enhancement of all the environmental factors that make Canada such a blessed place. I think that strong communities and protection of the environment must be tightly linked. But whether we like it or not, government, business and the media increasingly define progress by the narrow terms of growth in the economy, profit and consumption.

Our government and the press point almost exclusively to the health of the economy as the measure of how well we are doing. But the state of the economy is assessed by indicators like Gross National Product (GNP) that simply calculate the total annual exchange in goods and services. And GNP has become more than just an arbitrary collection of numbers, it is the very foundation of political initiatives and government propaganda. Entire government programs are formulated on the rise or fall of the GNP.

Of course the state of the economy has enormous repercussions for all of us. But in focussing so tightly on the economy through economic indicators we receive a distorted indication of what's going on. For example, the values give no indication as to why the exchange in goods and services has risen or fallen. A new company, plant expansions or industrial growth are not all that contributes to a rising GNP. So do

by David Suzuki

injuries sustained in car accidents, death from smoking and environmental damage by oil spills.

Meanwhile, the very glue which holds society together fails to register at all in the GNP. Thus, full-time parenting, which I would have thought is one of the noblest and most important roles an adult could play, represents a loss to the labour force and measures zero on the GNP whereas a baby sitter, nanny and day-care worker all contribute to an increasing GNP.

I've been thinking about this a lot lately. If volunteers were paid, their salaries would add up to billions of dollars. But their value transcends anything that can be measured in dollars and cents because they enable organizations to exist and function and create a community of people bound by common interests and goals.

Last month, my daughter's elementary school held a concert for all the children learning to play stringed instruments in the music program. The teacher used her connections to recruit 12 experienced musicians including players from the Vancouver Symphony, the Vancouver Youth Symphony and a string quartet. These visiting professionals took time from their lives to spend an evening playing with and for children without any remuneration. That doesn't register anywhere on government indicators, but my daughter Sarika couldn't stop talking about it for days and I'm sure she will remember it for life. How could we ever put a price on that?

I watch with trepidation as my father, who is in his 80s, still climbs neighbor's trees to prune and shape them or wields his chainsaw to cut firewood for friends. In return, he never lacks for homemade jam, cakes and bread, and his neighbors keep an eye on him in case he gets sick or needs a hand.

These are what communities are all about. We are social animals and it is through sharing, caring and helping that we enjoy a true quality of life. Our communities provide satisfaction and support that diminish our need for excessive consumption. In our obsessive pursuit of all things in economic terms, we rely on numbers that bear little relationship to the things that really matter. Creation of more self-sufficient communities would be real progress.

Wedding celebration a joy

Although the weather didn't cooperate very well, it didn't interfere with Don Alton and Doris Robertson's wedding plans. The ceremony was performed in the little United Church in Lochlin that Doris attended Sunday School when a child. It was a beautiful ceremony and Don and Doris made a handsome couple. Doris wore a turquoise blue dress with white bouquet and hair ornament. The church was literally packed with relatives and friends. Thanks to Linda and Jack Fry, I was able to attend the wedding, which was held March 20 at 7 p.m.

The wedding dance was in the Minden Arena with a sumptuous lunch served at 11 p.m. Don and Doris are now enjoying their honeymoon in Florida.

Sunday Anita Smith read to us at 1:30 p.m. Thank you Anita.

Chapel Service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess Sunday evening, with June Mason playing the organ. Thank you John and June.

Monday I went to see my sister in Peterborough with Terry and Norma. Norma had the cast removed from her wrist. Dianna Morris came to show the films in the evening. Thank you Dianna.

Tuesday morning Chapel service was led by Louise Leonard and Evelyn Coleman. The residents sincerely thank you Louise and Evelyn.

The residents enjoyed their Wednesday visit with the beautiful dogs that visit regularly.

Thursday was a beautiful day for the Lakeside Baptist Church from Haliburton to bring our Thursday tea party. The ladies were Pamela Bryant, Diane Plouffe, Doreen Hodgies, Elaine Holland and Irene Roberts. We had a delicious tea and truly thank the ladies who provided it.

Friday at Happy Hour we were entertained by Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and Don White. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden and Dottie Muirhead. The residents and their friends thank all for a happy afternoon.

To give Haliburton County an idea of what the Hyland Crest Auxiliary does for the home and residents, and how we need anyone who could spare the time to give them a hand we have added the following information.

Our Auxiliary meetings are held on the last Monday of each month at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium at

by Winnifred Barnum

Hyland Crest.

Our aim is to provide the residents at Hyland Crest with comforts and services over and above those supplied by the home. At present, we operate a tuck shop and cart, provide a personal shopping service for residents, arrange a pen pal program for residents and students in Mrs. Berry's class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School and organize a weekly Thursday afternoon tea program which includes a birthday cake on the last Thursday of the month for those whose birthday falls in said month.

It also holds a Spring Card Party (this year on Wednesday, April 21 at 2 p.m.), a Strawberry Tea with bake table and white elephant table (Wednesday, June 30 at 2 p.m.), a Fall Card Party (Wednesday, September 30 at 2 p.m.) and a Christmas Tea with bake and white elephant table (Thursday, November 4 at 2 p.m.).

Each resident receives a birthday card from the Auxiliary and a Christmas gift as well. We are also available to assist the staff at Hyland Crest when needed.

We invite you to become a member (only $2 per year) and join us at our monthly meetings. We are a friendly group and I'm sure you would find our activities very rewarding.

For further information on the Auxiliary please call Muriel Mark at 286-2260.

Proposed Fisheries Research Project in Mouse Lake (Sherborne Township) - Haliburton Highlands Area, Bancroft District.

Research biologists from York University are proposing to transfer small and largemouth bass from Ranger Lake (Ridout Township) into Mouse Lake (Sherborne Township). This is part of a long term research project to determine how aquatic food chains are affected by the addition and/or removal of top predator fish species.

This project is considered to be fish stocking into new waters and is being planned in accordance with the approved Class Environmental Assessment for Small Scale MNR Projects.

This notice is intended to give you the opportunity to provide input to the planning of this project. Where you feel, after consulting with MNR staff, that serious environmental concerns remain unresolved, it is your right to request that the project be subject to an individual environmental assessment under the Environmental Assessment Act. This decision rests with the Minister of the Environment.

Comments and information collected regarding this study will be kept on file and unless otherwise requested, will be available for public review.

You are invited to direct any inquiries, comments or requests regarding this fish stocking proposal to the Area Manager, Haliburton Highlands Area Office by April 30, 1993.

Remember about ten years ago when funds were being raised for the Library/Cultural Centre and many people purchased wooden name plates to be placed in the entry hall? These names are now inscribed on a plaque and you may now have the one that you bought originally. You could use them at your own home. They can be picked up at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and the hours there are Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

hour of sleep!

IN MEMORIAM

HARRISON, Wayne Craig - In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Wayne, who left us on April 2, 1992. When family ties are broken And loved ones have to part, It leaves a wound that never heals, And also, broken hearts. But looking back on memories Upon the paths we trod, We are blest for the years we had with him And leave the rest to God. Loved forever, Mom, Dad and brother Brian.

HARRISON, Wayne Craig - In loving memory of a dear brother, brother-in-law and uncle who passed away April 3, 1992. As time has passed This prior year, Memories keep you ever near, Silent thought of times together Hold memories that will last forever. Sadly missed by Karen, Herb and Jeanette.

HARRISON: In loving memory of a dear nephew, Wayne, who drowned April 2, 1992. In a little country graveyard, May the gentle breeze blow, Where the one we love is sleeping Taken from us one year ago. We think of him in silence, We often speak his name, But all we have left are memories And a picture in a frame. Our hearts still ache with sadness And silent tears still flow And what it meant to lose you Only we will ever know.

Never forgotten by Holly Harrison, Wilfred & Phyllis Ackerblade and families.

IN MEMORIAM

PRIEST, Verna - In loving memory of our dear aunt who passed away March 21, 1987.

The depth of sorrow we cannot tell, Of the loss of the one we loved so well, And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep, Her memory we shall always keep.

Always remembered by Shirley and Dave.
